

Man Arrested After Running Onto Tarmac at Sydney Airport

A 30-year-old man has been arrested after he allegedly breached security at Sydney Airport, running onto the tarmac. Police responded to a call from Sydney International Airport on Friday, after a man allegedly ran through the main screening area of the airport. Australian Federal Police officers intercepted the man on the tarmac, they said in a statement today.

"AFP officers arrested a man, 30, who allegedly ran through the main screening area and gained access to restricted areas, including the apron", they said. Tartu Airport Under Russia's Hybrid Attack - Baltic Foreign Ministers

The foreign ministers of the Baltic states warn that the GPS signal interference, as a result of which two Finnair flights from the Finnish capital Helsinki to the southern Estonian university town of Tartu were unable to land at Tartu airport last week, is being carried out by Russia and is so dangerous that sooner or later it can cause a plane crash, the regional Tartu Postimees writes.

The foreign ministers of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania told the Financial Times (FT) that GPS jamming across the Baltics has increased in recent weeks. Estonian Foreign Minister Margus Tsahkna said that the GPS jamming at Tartu airport is a Russian hybrid attack.

German airline Lufthansa has announced the extension of its flight cancellations to Tehran until May 9, citing ongoing security concerns. The decision follows an initial suspension of services to and from Tehran amid fears of potential military escalation in the region. The airline's move comes in response to heightened tensions following an Israeli attack on Iran on April 19, which prompted several airlines to alter their flight routes. Some flights were canceled, others were diverted to alternate airports, and a few returned to their departure points due to temporary airspace and airport closures.

An Air Astana pilot has been detained in drugs intoxication at Almaty airport. “On April 23, an airline pilot was detained at Almaty airport, flying as a passenger, in a state of drug intoxication,” the KazTAG editors responded to the Air Astana press service. The police are conducting a pre-trial investigation. It is noted that the pilot has been suspended from work. The press service refrained from answering the editor's questions about when the pilot was on his last flight and whether he had drugs on him at the time of his arrest. The KazTAG editors are also awaiting a response from the press service of the transport police department. In fact, an Air Astana pilot who failed an alcohol test in Amsterdam was fired from his job in 2017.
